GOVERNOR DAVIS LAW ENFORCEMENT MAKING GOOD

Declaring Ohio to be the leader in the movement of prohibition law enforcement, by virtue of this state's pioneer system in carrying out enforcement operations, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League of America, while in Columbus today, gave praise to Governor Harry L. Davis and Prohibition Commissioner Don V. Parker for the manner in which the law enforcement problem is being handled by the state administration.
He referred to the plan and work of the Ohio law enforcement department, organized by Governor Davis, as "the ideal system," and added it should form an inspiration for other states to profit by Ohio's example.
Ohio is making good in its prohibition enforcement efforts, he said. "Every loyal American citizen within the state ought to back it to the limit."
The state administration responsible for this department deserves great credit for backing up such an effective enforcement department. The Governor appoints the Prohibition Commissioner and thus bears full responsibility for the success or failure of this work.
"Unquestionably, the plan in Ohio is the ideal one. Every state should provide machinery within the state to see to it that its own prohibition laws are enforced."
Wheeler recalled that Ohio as the birthplace of the Anti-Saloon League movement and thus the cradle of prohibition, fittingly now becomes the leader in the movement for law enforcement.
The state pointed to the state enforcement department as an asset not only in a moral, but in a financial way, stating it had collected in fines and other ways enough within six months to run the department four years.
"Of course, law breakers are not enthusiastic over this kind of a department. They just don't like to see this plan they have to pay both ends of the law-suit. They hire their own attorney to defend them and then spend money which they pay back to the state and are used, at least indirectly, to enforce the law further against them. There is one good answer to this. If these law breakers are not enthusiastic over this kind of a department, they should be made to pay for the burden which they place upon the government."
"The Ohio enforcement department has demonstrated, first of all, that it can get results. The law is being enforced in many municipalities in Ohio through this department where local officials have failed to do their duty. When a state or nation votes dry the law must be enforced throughout the whole unit. No municipality or locality is exempted from the duty of obeying the law."

ADJUSTED COMPENSATION

At the election to be held Nov. 8th, the Proposed Amendments to the Constitution will be voted on all over Ohio. This new amendment does not create any new board of commission with additional overhead expense to the State of Ohio, it merely utilizes the Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners which already exists by virtue of article VIII of the State Constitution.
The amendment will be on a separate ballot with two other amendments and it will be the first one on this ballot and will be as follows:
To provide for issuing bonds for Adjusted Compensation for service in the World War, in order to pay Ohio veterans thereof, $10 for each month of service.
The State of Ohio vs. the people of Ohio is in you, the people of Ohio don't forget your promise to the Ohio Soldier when they went into service. This is the first time the people have had a chance to make good those promises made in 1917 and 1918, now see that you do.
No state has turned down adjusted compensation, but in every case it was submitted to the people and have been carried by tremendous majorities.
Give the soldier of Ohio a square deal Nov. 8th.

FIRST NUMBER OF LECTURE COURSE

Larado Taft, noted Chicago sculptor who is to be heard at High School Auditorium Thursday evening, Oct. 27th, is probably the most famous of all artists engaged in this particular line of work. At the various international exhibitions he has always received special honors for his contributions. Particularly was this true with the Columbian Exposition at which two of his group adorned the entrance of the horticultural hall. Other statues from his hand are the Colfax statue at Indianapolis and the statue of General Grant at Fort Leavenworth.

In his lecture here, Mr. Taft will demonstrate before his audience the manner in which a sculptor works. He will explain the difficulties encountered in the carving of marble, as well as a number of the finer points, such as character, delineation in facial features.

This new firm solicits your business and stand ready to give you the best of service.
Mr. Ralph Merrill the partner who has sold his interests is undecided as to what business he will go into as yet. We hope he will remain in Wauseon.

GOOD ROADS
Mr. R. J. Kreighbaum, one of the Tribune's old subscribers called at this office Friday. Mr. Kreighbaum lives at Tedrow and he said, "I have traveled more this summer than ever before." I attended the Baldwin Leaning at Ludington, Michigan last year, making the trip by auto with my son. It sure was fine to see and ride over such fine roads. From Benton Harbor to Ludington it must be several hundred miles and all along the route they were building concrete roads. It was at one time a macadam but the tax payers were tired of paying for the maintenance of this road as it had to be repaired or re-surfaced every year.

OHIO STATE AUTO-MOBILE ASSOCIATION

By a process of elimination the Ohio State Automobile Association in a campaign which it is to launch at once expects to check up on the owners of used or second hand automobiles in the state who have not filed certificates of ownership with the clerk of court in their respective counties, as required under the Automobile Anti-theft Law, and to see that the delinquents comply with the law.

Two months have now elapsed since the act became effective and while thousands of car owners have performed their full duty in this respect, many of them owners of new cars, it is known that many others have not, and the Association expects to make good its promise to the legislature that if the law was passed it would aid in its enforcement, that the thefts of automobiles in Ohio may be reduced to a minimum.

The State Association has the list of all cars having a license in the state and with this as a basis its process of elimination will be started first by working through its affiliated clubs in the sixty some counties of the state in checking up with the list of owners of second hand cars who have filed certificates of ownership with the clerk of the courts in these counties.

After checking up in this way the association will then know what owners have not filed any certificates of this kind. This list will then be checked up with the dealers in different communities to ascertain whether those who have not filed certificates are the owners of cars purchased new direct from dealers or manufacturers agents.

Having followed up the process to this extent, the Association will then be in possession of the means of the owners of second hand cars who have failed to comply with the Automobile Law. It will then only remain for action to be taken to see that they do comply or face the unpleasant situation of showing cause for their failure to act, before the proper courts, as well as probably having to pay the penalty as prescribed in the law for such failure.

In order that every county in the state may be thoroughly checked up the Secretary of the Ohio State Automobile Association stated that clubs affiliated with the Association will conduct this work in adjacent counties where there is no club. The clubs will also have a still further avenue of checking when they come to issue the 1922 license tags as all owners will then be questioned as to filing sworn statements of ownership.

The Secretary said further that in view of the fact that the clubs over the state were supplying the necessary blanks free and doing the work of filing them out, that it was a help to a protection to car owners to see that such statements are filed with the clerk of court.

DAVIS AND GROESBECK TO BE PRESENT AT GAME

The governors of two states will witness the Ohio-Michigan game on Friday at 10 o'clock Rev. F. Ferry Field at Ann Arbor October 22. Governor Harry L. Davis is planning to follow the Ohio State team to Ann Arbor, and Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck of Michigan will be the other state official in attendance.
Six thousand seats have been reserved for Ohio rooters, and a good many of this number have been sold. Five special trains will be chartered to carry the Ohio rooters.

AN EARLY TRIP UP SANDUSKY RIVER

James Smith, some twenty years later a colonel in the Revolutionary war, in the account of his Ohio travels, 1755-1759 tells of passing up the Sandusky river late in the year 1757. When they came to the "falls" (above Fremont) they buried their birch bark canoe at a large burying place a little below the rapids. "At this place the river falls about eight feet over a rock but not perpendicular. With much difficulty we pushed our wooden canoes. Some of us went up the river and the rest by land with the horses, until we came to the great meadows or prairies that lie between Sandusky and Scioto." Smith was then about twenty years old and was the only white man with the party of Indians. He describes a "ring hunt" with some Ottawa hunters, which was accomplished by setting a circle of fire about tall grass which forces the deer out and they are killed as they run. Ten deer to each hunter were killed in this drive. From the "glades" they moved to the "carrying place" "which is a plain betwixt a creek that empties into the Sandusky and one that empties into the Scioto, and at the time of high water * * * there is but about one-half mile of portage rocks, timber or stone, so that with a little digging there may be water carriage the whole way from Scioto to Lake Erie."
